ON HER TRAIL BY MARCELLE DUBÉ PDF

After five years of covering seedy Eastern European politics, Laura Thorsen returns to Canada, only to run afoul of the mob. When they try to kill her over an explosive exposé, she flees to her secluded childhood home in the Yukon. Little does she know that her estranged mother is also being haunted - by the ghosts of her dead husband and a former lover who disappeared 34 years ago.

Their nearest neighbor, Mack Hawkins, is drawn into the action when mobsters track Laura down. Despite her protests, he insists on his own brand of personal protection, and desire soon sparks between them. But in this race for time, will Laura be able to evade those who want her dead and mend her relationship with her mother before it's too late?

Terrific Suspense - Lovely Romance

By Betsy

Laura Thorsen has a problem. In her quest for a Pulitzer worthy news story, she's made a very dangerous man very, very angry. Now he's after her to stop her from publishing the story. After a near miss when her car is bombed, Laura heads home to the Yukon and her estranged mother. But it's not that easy to get away and Laura has to finally decide who she can trust. Her boss? Her mother's good-looking neighbor? Can she even trust her mother, who has some secrets of her own? And just who are the mysterious men appearing and disappearing in the forest?

I really enjoyed this book. The mysteries are multiple and complex, the suspense tense, the romance between Laura and Mack, the neighbor, hot. But in my opinion the heart of this book is the relationship between Laura and her mother. The longer they are in contact with each other, the more of their past is peeled away and the more they each have to come to terms with the regrets and dreams of what has been. When we finally discover what happened between Laura's mother, father and a friend who vanished 30 years ago, we understand how those decisions impacted all of their lives.
