The Stone Plainly Revealed

By N. Collette

This book plainly reveals how to make the stone via the wet path and YES it really does work! The section by Volpierre is vague but the next chapter is by a student who was a friend of Volpierre in their alchemy classes.

By dissolving antimony trisulfide (natural ore) with iron filings using sulfuric and hydrochloric acid prepared from natural sources, the Red Lion is produced which is then redistilled several times until the Flying Dragon appears or Philosophical Mercury. The secret to this process working is that a sealed container is used when dissolving the mineral and no fumes (spirit) are allowed to escape. Its amazing that something so simply actually produces an end product which does not contain the original metals. A few years back there was a website that showed this process step by step but has now been removed. But keep searhing on google because I will have it on my website soon!

If you are interested in proving that everything said about the stone is indeed true, then you MUST read this book and try the simple experiment.

The hermetic Art

By Richard Walker

What an awesome book describing in detail the making of the stone. Reading the processes has further gained my interest because I already knew through certain procedures the full process of the stone the fermented metals turn into antimony it was just I did not know what to do after that step and this book helps to understand this process. The work is still shrouded in mysteries but this book helps in understanding a workable philosophy. I just happened to stumble across this book on accident looking for other books I'm glad I can proceed with my studies. For anyone interested in the stone the philosophy is around killing the molecules of the metals but while they are absorbed in the philosophical mercury they still exist, your simply killing the old and bringing the molecules back to a higher existence that will reform to make gold and how they got this knowledge in the past is just amazing and shows that the ancient Alchemists were into things that we would dismiss now days as heresy but they do this to turn people away from trying it because there are alot of things that the ancient Alchemists were experimenting with like the liquid stone that cured all manner of diseases and they also had something to stop the aging process and make the body live another like 100yrs sometimes more but this I will not go into detail about all I can say is I luv Alchemy
