Maggie Phillips is back in an all new Misadventure!

After a year in Hudson, Maggie Phillips—A.K.A the laundry hag—is sure she’s seen all the small Massachusetts town has to offer. Of course that’s until her newest client turns out to be psychic who’s inherited a massive estate from her recently deceased grandfather, much to the displeasure of the rest of the family. Maggie soon suspects that what everyone believed was death by natural causes might’ve been a well-planned murder. Never fear, Maggie, her sexy SEAL and the rest of the cleaning crew are on the case. Are the relations responsible for terrorizing the timid soothsayer and how far will they go to reclaim one percent status? One thing’s for sure, the laundry hag never saw this kerfuffle coming....

Wonderful entertainment

By Zena

Loved every second of this book. Having read the whole series (so far) I think this is the best one. Actually, each one has been great and progressively better than the one before.

It's the type of book that make you wish it would go on forever ... The kind that grips you and keeps you guessing right until the end.

Maggie, Neil, family and friends, thank you for entertaining me so thoroughly!

Loved it

By Mary Gramlich

Maggie Phillips is a full time everything to everyone and there are days when it is just enough and others over the top too much. She adores her family and could not ask for a better husband but maybe he could a little less than perfect like her occasionally, please. But with her cleaning business moving along at a snail's pace the latest job seems like it will be long term and interesting. Sarah needs to clean out the remnants from her grandfather's home and Maggie is going to do her best to keep the good memories and purge the bad ones. Her friend Sylvia is always there to hold the trash bag open and offer advice but what Maggie needs is to control her own self more and others a little less.

As she moves through the piles of left overs Maggie discovers a life that Sarah's grandfather led that he kept a secret from everyone and Sarah wants Maggie's help to uncover the mystery of why he was so reclusive. The more Maggie delves into this man's history the less she likes him and what he may have done. There are friends that are dying from apparent old age but are they really or someone helping them along. She knows that it is not paranoia if someone really is after you, and Maggie has had a lot of people after her for less than honorable reasons.

While Maggie sorts through someone else's junk she is also deciding where to take her life from the point she is at right now. Does she want another baby, would she like to take on a career with her sons growing up, or is the thought of sharing something unique with her husband all that matters. Well staying alive and not getting into another hole she cannot find a way out of is the most important to do every day of her life, let's face it she is not the most lucky in some areas of life.

The characters are engaging, the mystery intriguing, and the story line never stops moving which is just a few of the reasons I love to read a book written by Jennifer Hart. I admit to complete reader disclosure that Maggie is my favorite character because of her imperfection and complete love of cleaning.

Another laugh out loud mystery

By Andrea L. Stoeckel

[FTC: I received this book directly from the author as part of "Hart's Hotshots". I was not compensated in any way, nor was anything requested of me except an honest review.]

Maggie and the gang are back in the third installment of this laugh out loud cozy mystery series from Jennifer L. Hart. "Uncle Scrooge" is still trying to pinch pennies as she and Sylvia: her next-door- neighbor/ brother's landlord/ "partner in grime" are helping a customer Sarah Dale, clear out the clutter of her grandfather's estate while dealing with psychic terrorism from relatives, friends, and....a ghost? AND a new niece....and an older son teetering on teenager-ness...

At times reminiscent of a "ScoobyDo Mystery", this laugh-out loud story deals with the past, the present and leaves the future for..... a whole new set of questions. One of the best things about this is we get some backstory/ history on the whole family, warts and all....that is, if the dog doesn't love it to death first!

Bring on Number 4!
